

INTEGRITY IRELAND WEBSITE – GENERAL DISCLAIMER

Care has been taken to ensure that all the information on this website is accurate and factual, and that opinions, where offered, are as objective as possible and based upon the genuine personal experiences of I-I members. However, if you discover anything that is not accurate, please notify us at admin@integrityireland.ie giving your full name and contact details and explaining your position, and we will address the matter at the earliest opportunity. We regret however that unsubstantiated or anonymous requests for amendments will not be responded to.

Confidentiality and copyright: This website contains a public area and a private ‘members only’ area. All materials in the public area of the website are free to view, copy or disseminate. The ‘members only’ area is password-protected and contains exclusive, copyrighted materials that are strictly private and confidential, and are for the private consumption of I-I members only. Only members in good standing are allowed access to the secure ‘members-only’ area. Direct copying, re-quoting or other dissemination of the original confidential materials and data in the secure members’ area is not permitted under any circumstances unless the same is also already legitimately quoted or released in public documents or in the public area of this website, and/or disseminated via secondary sources (such as the media or the Courts) and/or with the unanimous written approval of the current Integrity Ireland committee.

Non-members: Accessing the information in the secure members’ area (by any means) is a breach of the terms and conditions of this website. If you have procured or received data or information from the restricted members’ area by indirect or secondary means, you are prohibited from copying, publishing, repeating or otherwise disseminating the same, without the unanimous written approval of the current Integrity Ireland committee and/or the current website administrator, as appropriate.

Members: Are bound by the Rules & Guidelines, and may appropriate data from the secure members’ area for the purposes of advancing their own cases—or those of other members—whilst exercising due care and prudence. Specific reference may be made to the qualified facts and figures in the secure area of the website (on the grounds that all such facts have been verified by proofs or sworn statements) but no materials should be directly copied or quoted in formal or legal correspondence without the express written approval of the current Integrity Ireland committee and/or the current website administrator.

Visitors: May freely read, copy, quote or otherwise disseminate any of the materials in the public area of the website, and may apply for I-I membership by filling out a confidential ‘application for membership’ form.

Whistleblowers: Anonymous or pseudonymous approaches are encouraged from whistleblowers. Your confidentiality will be absolutely respected.

Liability: No member or group of members may speak on behalf of Integrity Ireland except by quoting directly from the public area of this website. Integrity Ireland is not liable or responsible for the contents of any linked websites, nor for the individual actions or activities of I-I members, or groups of members.
